How to make a loom for

Story Weaving

You will need

- * Ball of sturdy string or cotton twine for "warp"
- * Branch, large dowel or piece of driftwood for top bar
- * heavy board or log with flat bottom for floor bar
- * nails with wide flat heads, about 1" long, and a hammer
- * strips of fabric, paper, yarn, lace, ribbon, reeds, stalks or other materials you might discover for "weft"

Cut equal lengths of string twice the desired finished length plus about 6". Number is up to you. Loop the middle of each strand around the top bar as shown, and let the lengths hang down. You can do this on a table or the floor. (Watch out for feline "helpers" ...)

Pound the nails halfway into the bottom bar. Make two parallel rows, alternating spaces as shown. Each single strand of string will tie to a nail.

Hang up the loom top bar so that the strands hang down, leaving several inches for tying to the nail heads. Use a square not and even tension to tie the strings.

Finally, weave several rows of twine or string near the bottom and even out the spacing.

Ready for story weaving! Make sure that the loom is hung where it won't fall while kids are weaving. Have a variety of materials ready for choosing. Remember: process is more important than product!

When finished, cut the bottom strings at the nail heads and tie them, 3-4 strands at a time, into tassels. Have fun!
