What is "The Education Revolution"?

"The Education Revolution" is a book by David Perkins, a leading expert on learning and cognition. In this book, Perkins argues that the current education system is based on a fundamentally flawed model of learning.

Perkins believes that learning is not a passive process of absorbing information. Rather, it is an active process of constructing knowledge. Students learn best when they are actively engaged in the learning process, and when they are able to connect new information to their existing knowledge.

The New Vision for Learning

Perkins' new vision for learning is based on the following principles:

- Learning is an active process. Students learn best when they are actively engaged in the learning process.
- Learning is a social process. Students learn best when they are able to collaborate with others and share their ideas.
- Learning is a lifelong process. Learning does not end when students graduate from school. It is a lifelong process that continues throughout a person's life.

Perkins' new vision for learning has the potential to transform the education system. It offers a more effective, engaging, and equitable way to learn.
