Meet the Authors

"The Cultures of Alternative Mobilities" is the brainchild of two renowned scholars in the field: Dr. Sarah Hemmings and Dr. Thomas Pausenberger.

Dr. Hemmings, a cultural geographer, brings her expertise in the social and cultural dimensions of mobility to the book. Her research has focused on the ways in which walking, cycling, and other forms of non-motorized transportation shape our everyday lives and our relationships with our surroundings.

Dr. Pausenberger, an urban planner and anthropologist, contributes his deep understanding of the physical and social infrastructure that supports alternative mobility practices. His work has explored the planning and design of cycling and pedestrian facilities, as well as the role of these modes of transportation in creating more sustainable and livable cities.
