The trilogy follows the lives of two families from different worlds: the aristocratic von Reiters and the working-class Reeds. Their paths collide amidst the chaos of World War II, forever altering their fates.

Love in the Time of War

In the face of unimaginable horrors, love emerges as a beacon of hope and resilience. The characters in the trilogy navigate complex relationships, finding solace and strength in each other.

Anna von Reiter, a young woman from a wealthy German family, falls deeply in love with Thomas Reed, a British soldier. Their forbidden romance blossoms amidst the ruins of war, defying all odds and societal expectations.

““In a time of chaos and destruction, their love became a sanctuary, a refuge from the darkness that surrounded them.””

Self-Discovery and Resilience

The trilogy explores the transformative power of war on the human spirit. The characters are forced to confront their own weaknesses, question their beliefs, and find hidden reserves of strength.

Eleanora Reed, Thomas's sister, embarks on a journey of self-discovery as she witnesses the horrors of the war firsthand. Through her experiences, she learns the importance of standing up for what she believes in and fighting for her dreams.

““The war had shattered their world, but it also forged an unbreakable bond between them and ignited within them a fierce determination to rebuild their lives.””

Family Ties

Family plays a central role in the trilogy. The characters' relationships with their loved ones are tested and strengthened by the challenges of war.

Max von Reiter, Anna's father, is a high-ranking Nazi official who struggles to reconcile his loyalty to his family with his duty to his country. His choices have profound consequences for his daughter and the entire von Reiter family.

“In the face of adversity, their family became a fortress, a sanctuary where they could find solace and draw strength from one another.”

The Writing of Joanne Macgregor
